FROM EVERY HOUSE

Perfect and Most Elaborate Preparations Being Made to Decorate City.

At a session yesterday of the subcommittee appointed Monday night at the citizens' meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce, elaborate preparations were made for the decorations of the entire city in honor of the comting visit of President Rossevelt. Particular attention will be given to the streets covered by the line of march of the presidential party, along which it is hoped that every house and store will be beautified with flags and bunting, but it will also be the endeavor of the gentlemen who have undertaken this work to secure co-operation from the citizens at large so that wherever the President may go in his drive through the city his eye will be met by the national colors.

the city his eye will be not by the his thouse colors.

The decoration will probably be on a scale seldom, if ever, equalled here. The system adopted by the committee is as thorough as a political machine, and it will get down to work instantly. The chairman of the committee, Mr. Robert Leeky, and the secretary, Mr. E. Lesite Spence, Jr., along with several gentlechalrman of the committee, Mr. Robert Lecky, and the secretary, Mr. E. Leslie Spence, Jr. along with several gentlemen known as the General Decorations Committee, will have supervision over the work as a whole. Under them will be three or four other committees which will be held responsible for the condition of the several streets along which the President will pass. Each of these committees will have under it, In turn, a sub-committee for each block within its territory. Finally the committees for each block within its territory. Finally the committees for each block will organize the tenants, so that a complete system will be worked out. The ground floor tenants will be called upon to arrange with those occupying upper stories for the decoration of the entire building, since it is particularly desired that there be no gaps in the decorations.

Business men generally are responding to the movement and every indication points to a notable success for this feature of the entertainment. One merchant yesterday ordered 4,000 United States flags for use upon his building. On Monday at least twenty orders were turned in to decorators. The Virginia Passonger and Power Company will do inuch to make the decoration scheme a success. The buildings of the company, the street cars and the cross wires along the streets will be decorated.

To the Public:

The Decoration Committee of the Citizens Committee of Three Hundred makes the appeal to all citizens to decorate their business houses and residences on the occasion of the President's visit to Richmond.

All business houses on Main and Broad Streets should be decorated in a becoming manner, and should include the entire front.

Buildings occupied by more than a single tenant can be best handled by all tenants sharing in the enterprise, and we respectfully request the ground floor tenants to arrange this matter at once.

We especially urge the decoration of the private residences of the city. The committee has been subdivided into smaller committees, who are placed in charge of certain business blocks, streets and residential sections. Do not delay, however, until this committee cails on you, but begin the arrangements now.

There are a number of flag staffs in the city which are seldom, if ever, used. To the owners or tenants of such buildings as may have those flagstaffs, we urge that on October 18th they will fly the United The arrangements of the various decoration to the control of the carrangements of the various decoration to the control of the carrangements of the various decoration to the control of the carrangements of the various decoration.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., October 3.—The oft-recurring suggestion that the Democrats nominate a Southern man to the presidency is being heard rather longer before election than usual. It is a noticeable fact that this suggestion is always made by Northern men and papers, and that Southern people have not, as a rule, taken kindly to the proposal that a Southern man be placed on the ticket.

It is somewhat different this year. The press of the South has taken up the suggestion, and it is believed that there has nowhere been a note of opposition. All papers of the South opposite it when made last year, and nearly every one of them advocated the nomination of Judge Parker. The Judge was nominated, and received a more cruching defeat than almost any candidate of the Democratio party ever got. It is probable that the overwhelming defeat of Judge Parker has had something to do with the very apparent change in the attitude of the press and people of the South.

But there are men in the Southern country who would fill the position of chief executive of the nation with credit to their section and the whole country. Senator Bailey, whom the late Senator Hoar admired most extravagantly, said recently he would rather see Senator Daniel President of the United States than any man in the world. The name of the Virginia senator has often been mentioned in connection with the presidency. He would have been the vice-presidential nominee at St. Louis last year had he consented. His consent had been obtained and the nomination was his, when certain politicians, with decidedly selfish alms, as has been demonstrated since the election, in The work of the citizens in assisting the municipal government to extend to the President a reception that will be eclipsed by no other he will receive in any section of the South is now definitely under way. The character of, the meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Monday night and the enthusiasm and the spirit of hearty co-operation manifested have given a great impetus to the movement, and it is now confidently believed that all will join hands in giving to the event that attention which its importance demands.

Democrats want to make the fight for a Southern man on the ticket. It is be-lieved that the North would we come such from the Jefferson Hotel to the Capital from the Jefferson Hotel to passes down the street on his way from the hotel to a ruling place in the government. The sceptre departed from Judah forty-five years ago. For sixty years the South, though numerically the weaker section, had bean in control of the affairs of ...e country. of the South before she took up arms. Senator William H. Seward, afterwards to win distinction as a member of President Lincoln's Cabinet, made a speech in the Senate, in which he rejoiced that the South had oessed to be the ruling section and that the direction of governmental affairs had passed to other than Bouthorn men. He predicted that the greater number of Northern States and their greater population would make their rule unbroken, at least for many years.

JAMES HENRY'S VINDICATION, Sonator James Henry Hammond, of South Carolina, listened to Seward and made reply to him. His speech was long remembered as being an eloquent vindication of the memory of the men of the South who had assisted and controlled at the foundation of the government, and those who had labored so long to maintain the governmental ideals which had brought about the war of independence and national freedom. In the course of his reply to Senator Seward, Senator Hammond said:

Time has shown. In less than ten years after the overthrow of the South and the passing of the sceptre into the hands of the North, frauds and corruption in the administration of government, such as had never been heard of before in the history of the republic, were unearthed. The whiskey frauds, the Belkmap frouts, the star route frauds, are still fresh in the minds of Americans. Frauds in connection with the government's management of Indian tribes, army contract frauds, and frauds of nearly every conceivable description, came inter, and all before the North had been in control of the government two decades. There was some sort of cleaning out of government offices, or a hushing up, probably, and then there was little more heard of corruption until three years ago, when stories of fraud in the administration of the affairs of the Postoffice Department began to be circulated. The revelations following an investigation of the affairs of the department are still fresh in the public mind, and only yesterday the government counsel in the postal cases announced that one of the culprits would be brought Time has shown. Fraud in the Department.

Since the unearthing of the frauds in the Postoffice Department corruption has been found to exist in nearly every one of the Executive Departments. The re-cent revelations concerning the frauds in the Department of Agriculture, startled the country, and, in extent, are probably greater than those of the Postoffice De-partment. It is a most significant fact that there has not been a single instance of failure of officials to discover corrup-tion in recent years where an honest at-tempt has been made to find it. Senators and members of Congress have been con-victed of fraud practiced on the government; officials of the departments have been sent to prison, others have been dismissed from the service in disgrace, and still others are awaiting trial by a jury.

For years it has been the pleasure of the press and the people of the North to denounce election methods of the South, where the whites were trying to escape the horrors of rule by negroes. Southern constitutions, framed for the avowed purconstitutions, framed for the avoid pur-pose of disfranchising the negroes, have been attacked by the northern and west-ern Republican press, and stump speak-ers. South's Return to Power, Thinking men of the North are believed to be ready to welcome a return of the South to power. They hope it would rean a restoration of governmental honesty, and the ascendancy of those governmental ideals cherished by the men who first made America great, Certain it is that the suggestion that a southern man be placed on the Democratic ticket in 1908, even in first place, is being received with decided favor by northern Democrats. It is believed he would received with decided favor by northern Democratic candidate in the election of 1904. Many profess the belief that such a ticket would stand a chance to win. of J. Gabriel Guignard, of Columbia, S. C., and direct descendant of the illustrious Margaret de Leshmere.

"The Grove," the lovely colonial home of Dr. McBryde, was the scene of the celebration, a background of stately palms throwing into clear relief the purple and gold of chrysanthenums and asters and forming hall and drawing room decorations. An orchestra played the wedding chorus from Lohengrin and the sweet notes of Ribenstein's "Thou Art Like Unto'a Flower" fell softly upon the ear to a harp accompaniment during the cereinony, performed by the Rev. Robert J. McBride, of Lexington, Va., assisted by a brother of the bride, the Rev. Meade Bolton McBryde.

The bride was given away by her father, who walked with her to the altar. She was gowned in white crepp de chine, en princesse and en traine, garnitured with lovely ancestral lace and worn with pearls. Her veil, of lace over tulle, fell from sprays of natural orange blossoms, its folds being held with pearls and diamonds. Her flowers were a cascade of white orchids and lilies of the valley. She carried a white Morocco-bound prayer-book, from which the marriage service was read.

The maid of henor was in white chiffon over white taffeta. A girdle of pale yellow silk, lent a protty touch of color, matched by the chrysanthenums that she held. Her picture hat of chiffon and lace was finished with white tulic ties. The maids were very quaint and charming in yellow organdy tollets, with violet silk girdles and lace and ribbon trimmed yokes and sleeves. Their large yellow chiffon hats were wreathed with violets, and they had big clusters of these double fragrant blossoms.

SHAW IN DANVILLE.

He and Brown Allen Speak to a Large Audience.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
DANVILLE, VA., October 3.—Leslie M.
Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury spoke to a large audience at the Academy of Music here to-night in the interest of the Republican nominees for State offices.
United States Marshal Brown Allen, of the Republican nominees for State offices. United States Marshal Brown Allen, of Staunton, introduced the speaker. Mr. Allen in his introductory remarks dwelt or Swanson's record, and said that the candidacy of the Democratic nominee was based mainly on an appeal to race prejudice. He also called the Democratis to account for not submitting the new Constitution to the people for ratification, and said that over a hundred thousond white citizens of Virginia had been disfranchised on acount of it. Mr. Shaw led off in a humorous, but convincing vein, soon getting the audience intensely interested in his remarks. He dwell at some length on the tariff, and other national topics. He closed with an appeal to the voters of Virginia to elect Judge Lowis and the other nominees of the Republican party. Every seat in the lower floor of the Academy was taken, the Democrats, however, being much in the majority. In the gallery there were meny colored citizens.

Certain it is that he can prove an wall of the question on every tongue is where was he during these few minnies in which the crime was committed. Aside from the suspicion resting on Walson, the criminal is no nearer found now than he was Monday morning. The crime was committed before dark, within affty yards of a cabin, within a hundred yards of a number of houses, yet up far no one hus been found who can give any clue as to the perpetrator. Watson's wife says she was on the porch of her cabin all the while and heard nothing Mrs. Brown is unable to identify the assailant. She says she cannot de it. Before she thought of the purpose of the man whom she had barely noticed, she was blindfolded and knocked sense-

Should Have Been Held.

Considerable indignation is felt that Watson was not arrested before he went to Lynchburg. It was not until then, however, that Brown swore out a warrant. The evidence, they say, justified his being held at least, and he should have been arrested last night, Others say that he cannot escape, and that more evidence may develop, and the fact that he left will make a stronger case against him.

he left will make a stronger case against him.

Mrs. Brown is better, but still suffering from the bruises on her lead, throat and breast. Branch left with his hounds this morning. It is rumored that the board of a detective at their meeting to-day. It is not believed that there would be mob violence should the guilty party be found. Watson is a mulatte, tall and straight, and weighs 175 pounds. He has a dark moustache and a scar on his lip. He is about forty years of age and hus been in the penitentiary once, and is known as a mean negro when he is drunk. It is said that he was drinking Sunday.

Arrested Wrong Man.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
LYNOHBURG, VA., October 3.—James Carr, colored, of Amherst Courthouse, was arrested here this afternoon by local police on a description from the authorities there, on the charge of assaulting Mrs. Frank Brown in that place Sunday evening, but later was discharged when he satisfied the police that he was not the man wanted, the arrest proving to be a case of mistaken identity.

James Watson is the negro the Amherst authorities suspect of having committed the crime, but the last reports from that place indicate that no arrests have been made, and that Watson
